Nine injured in bus attack

Black Africans launch 3-day strike

ssociated Press

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Bombs exoded on buses and trains Monday, the beginning a three-day strike by hundreds of thousands of ack workers and students in defiance of government emergency regulations.

Manpower Minister Pieter du Plessis said the rotest was illegal and that workers who took part ight be fired.

Many factories were closed, including all seven ajor auto plants, but the mining industry said it as virtually unaffected, with only 9,000 of 550,000 acks at major companies missing work. Mining rns 80 percent of South Africa's foreign exange.

Police in the KwaZulu black homeland said a rebomb wounded five bus passengers. The homend government, which opposes the strike, said ne were hurt. No injuries were reported in seval other bombings of buses and of railroad cars, acks and stations.

Scores of schools were empty in black townships around Johannesburg, Cape Town and Durban. Several universities delayed final exams or canceled classes.

Buses were stoned and there were reports of police gunfire in Guguletu township near Cape Town. Police and soldiers patrolled in greater numbers and stood guard at some train stations.

A three-day strike would be the longest nationwide protest since an emergency was decreed June 12, 1986 to thwart a black revolt against apartheid, the policy of race discrimination that reserves power for South Africa's 5 million whites and denies the 26 million blacks a voice in national affairs.

It is the most ambitious opposition effort since the banning in February of political activity by major anti-apartheid groups and the largest black labor federation.

Among the main targets were those prohibitions and proposed legislation that would curtail the ability of labor unions to strike. Black union leaders had called for a "national protest" without specifying a strike.

They said they hoped to pressure business leaders into demanding the government ease restrictions on the anti-apartheid movement.

"This expression of opposition is one of the few remaining avenues of peaceful and legitimate protest available to us," said Jay Naidoo, head of the predominantly black Congress of South African Trade Unions, the nation's largest labor group.

If the labor congress is barred from such protests, "then the new era of labor relations is doomed and industrial stability is seriously jeopardized," he said in a statement.

Unions have accused employers of aiding an alleged government effort to weaken the black labor movement, which became legal only nine years ago. The strike is viewed as a test of strength for the unions and their allies.

Employers normally have a "no work, no pay" policy in illegal strikes but have reacted more strongly this time. Some obtained court orders prohibiting calls for strikes at their plants. Others threatened to dismiss absentees or cancel union contracts.

Soviet train explodes, killing 73

ssociated Press

MOSCOW — Panic-stricken vicms screamed for help and some ared nuclear war had broken out hen a train explosion flattened uses and shot flames and a mushom cloud skyward, Pravda reorted Monday.

The accident in Arzamas, an indusial city in the Soviet Union's Volga alley about 240 miles east of oscow, occurred Saturday when ree boxcars of a freight train loaded ith industrial explosives blew up.

Automobiles were tossed in the air and windows were shattered as far as a mile away, Soviet media said.

The official Soviet news agency Tass reported the death toll at 73. Pravda, the Communist Party newspaper, said it might be impossible to finally determine how many people died in the city of 90,000.

"First I saw a high column of flames shoot up. Then I heard a rumbling, and then a great mushroom cloud rose," Pravda quoted a witness, V. Dormidontov, as saying.

It quoted one unidentified weeping woman as saying, "The first thing that came to my mind was, 'Has it started?'" a reference to a nuclear attack.

The report on Pravda's back page was the latest in a series of revealing dispatches about the accident, an apparent sign of Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev's policy of "glasnost," or greater openness. Accidents were never reported in such detail before Gorbachev came to power in March 1985.

What shocked Arzamas residents, Pravda said, "was … the crippled people calling for help." The death toll likely would mount, the newspaper said, noting that rescue workers were still searching through rubble.

The newspaper noted that an ambulance was destroyed in the blast, leaving only the wheels behind. "We know for certain there was a driver, a nurse and a technician in the ambulance. But were there any patients?" Pravda asked.

The explosion destroyed 150 homes, leaving 600 families homeless, and severely damaged another 250 buildings, according to Soviet media.

Priesthood revelation to be celebrated

y DOUG GIBSON

When Spencer W. Kimball, presient of The Church of Jesus Christ of atter-day Saints, announced in 1978 at black members were eligible to ceive the priesthood, it was the lead ory on NBC news.

Because of the four-paragraph anouncement released the morning of riday, June 9, 1978, both Newsweek d Time magazine held final printing include the news. President Jimmy arter sent a telegram congratulatg President Kimball for the anouncement. Wednesday will mark e 10th anniversary of that revelaon.

When he was ordained president of e LDS Church in 1973, President mball explained to the press that e Lord would decided whether acks would receive the priesthood. Ve are under the dictates of our eavenly Father, and this is not my licy or the Church's policy. It is the licy of the Lord," he said

President Kimball raised the matr with Church apostles in early June d they remained in the Salt Lake emple to pray for more guidance. "I fered the final prayer and I told the ord if it wasn't right, if He didn't want this change to come into the Church, that I would be true to it the rest of my life. But it was right. I knew that the time had come … there was no question about it," said President Kimball.

Alan Cherry, a High Priest group leader in the Provo South Stake and a black baptized into the Church in 1968, recounted that he was "just as elated as anyone" with the revelation. However, Cherry believes that while many members saw the announcement as "an event," most black members perceived it "as a glorious part of a process."

Cherry points out that despite the color of one's skin, righteousness is still a requirement for receiving the priesthood. "Righteousness is still the bottom line of a church activity," he said.

Cherry has compiled 225 oral histories of black Church members and plans to write a book based on the interviews. "Each interview is a book of and in itself," he said. Cherry stressed the need for a work that reflects LDS culture from a black viewpoint. "We have to acquaint people with the history … most (blacks) speak of having a unique integrating experience," he added.

Mormon Tabernacle Choir member Marilyn Norris, a black convert to the Church, described the lifting of the priesthood ban as "one of the most fun days of my life. It was wonderful," she said. Norris, in a Deseret Church News interview, recounted that calls came from all over the country once the news spread. "We had to take the phone off the hook so I could feed my son at lunch time," she said.

Conference commemorates blacks receiving priesthood

By JENNIFER LINDEMAN
Universe Staff Writer

BYU is sponsoring the LDS Afro-American Symposium which will commemorate the 10th anniversary of blacks receiving the priesthood. It will focus on their past experiences and future outlook as members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, according to BYU public communications.

The day-long conference will begin at 8:30 a.m. Wednesday in the de Jong Concert Hall, HFAC.

Elder Dallin H. Oakes, a member of the Council of Twelve Apostles, will give the keynote address. Alan Cherry, director of the LDS Afro-American Oral History Project, will give the introduction. After a dinner in the ELWC Ballroom, James D. Walker, founding president of the Afro-American Historical and Genealogical Society, will give the concluding speech.

Panels will be held at 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. The first panel will discuss experiences of LDS blacks; the second will discuss Afro-Americans' outlook for the future. Much discussion will be based on information the LDS Afro-American Oral History Project gathered, according to BYU Public Communications.

Other participants include former NFL player Burgess Owens and former ASBYU Vice President and businessman Robert Stevenson.

All seminars are free and open to the public. For more information contact Jessie L. Embry at the Charles Redd Center for Western Studies, 378-4048.

Ashton stresses love, family and continuing

By JODI L. CLYDE

Leadership positions are not a prerequisite to being a disciple of Jesus Christ, said Marvin J. Ashton, a member of the Council of the Twelve Apostles, at a 17-stake fireside in the Marriott Center Sunday.

"Callings and offices are not as important as family, love and continuing," said Elder Ashton.

He used the words of John 8 to describe a self-motivator, and he said that the words of these scriptures can be related to relationship with Christ and how we perceive him.

"For as long as I can remember, I have had a special love for Jesus Christ. Truly he is the master teacher," he said.

"These scriptures give me the desire to better understand and try to be and do more like Jesus Christ."

Elder Ashton said each day the kingdom of our Heavenly Father rolls forward, but not without challenges. According to Ashton, to have respect for our brother Jesus Christ and never speak his name without reverence is very important.

Elder Ashton also stressed John 8 as it proposes certain characteristics about Jesus Christ:

- Christ was self-motivated.
- He sought privacy and seclusion.
- He got a good and early start every day.
- He attracted people by being personable.
- He spoke to people on their level.
- He spoke where and whenever he could.
- He spoke eye to eye, person to person, heart to heart.
- It was important for Jesus Christ to use a quiet time of silence to lift himself up.

Ashton said, "In your roles as leaders and students, having silent periods can be important. Silence can be very powerful. The impact of silence can prove many things. It can make you understand things better and feel guilty of your own conscience.

"Some of us decline to be with those who have fallen. We feel they are beneath or below us," he said.

According to Elder Ashton, President Ezra Taft Benson said, "Thank God for good people." Elder Ashton added, "I thank God for you and what you do. Take time to appreciate the good people around us."

He said Christ's great message was that he despised the sin but loved the sinner. "I hope this can give us strength and confidence in our Savior, Jesus Christ."

He said, "It is very rewarding for us to know that Jesus believes that the man is greater then all the sins."

Elder Ashton said sharing your testimony can be a powerful ally to someone in the time of need and nothing else seems to work.

"When you please Jesus Christ, you will have joy yourself," said Elder Ashton. "I hope and pray in some way that you will go forth tonight with a closer understanding of the ways of Jesus Christ."

Telethon breaks fund-raising records

The sixth annual Children's Miracle Network Telehon, held over the weekend, raised over $56 million, the argest amount ever raised by a telethon, according to elethon officials.

In the five years the telethon has been in existence, it as collected more than $110 million for children's hospials. All the money raised in the telethon will remain in the area where the money was donated and will benefit local participating hospitals, according to Ranae Findlayson, the telethon's director of communications.

Utahns donated more than $225,000 for the Primary Children's Hospital to use, said Sharon Goodrich, manager of special fund development programs for the hospital.

Utah was very supportive, Goodrich said. "That's one of the things that makes our hospital extra unique, the

Railroad's practice unsolved

Rep. Nielson and Amtrak at odds

By APRIL D. LOWRY
Senior Reporter

Congressman Howard Nielson, R-Utah, received a "long-awaited response" from Amtrak officials to a meeting regarding the railroad's practice of dumping raw sewage in Utah.

At the meeting on May 17 Nielson met with Amtrak officials, representatives from railroad workers unions, Gov. Norm Bangerter's staff and a House subcommittee, according to Nielson's spokeswoman Ruth McCormick.

"I anticipated a written confirmation of what I thought was a firm commitment on their (Amtrak's) part to take certain steps to deal with this problem," Nielson stated. "What I got was a repetition of Amtrak's "justification" for dumping sewage and why they plan to continue this disgusting practice."

Nielson sent a letter to Amtrak serving notice that their response was "unsatisfactory." According to Nielson's spokesman Ken Salaets, the congressman will not accept Amtrak's "business-as-usual" reaction to this complaint.

One of the specific actions Nielson is requesting is that toilet facilities be permanently locked on Hi-level cars, which dump sewage when the toilets are flushed. This would inconvenience personnel who would be required to walk to the next car to use the restroom. Nielson said this would save the estimated $4 million required to modernize equipment.

Nielson added that Amtrak should launch an immediate full inspection of its Superliner fleet. The investigation would be to verify whether the mechanism that is supposed to prevent the discharge of wastes when the train is moving at speeds under 25 mph is working as designed. Nielson said there are evidences that they are not.

Nielson has formally requested that the Department of Health and Human Services update their 1978 report regarding the health implications of discharging untreated sewage from railroad conveyances.

"Frankly I find it hard to believe that spraying railroad maintenance workers with human wastes does not present a health hazard," Nielson said.

Salaets said each time Amtrak responds to the congressman "it is a reiteration of past positions. It (the dumping problems) will eventually be resolved; it depends on how much pain they (Amtrak) wants to go through." Saleats said Amtrak was unwilling to add a proposed $1 usage fee per ticket nationwide to fit Superliners with equipment.

Black said that if that proposal were to be implemented it would set a precedent that would be a potential problematic pricing policy.

"Every time various capital projects were deemed important they would want to charge $1 per passenger.

"There are no extra funds for capital projects," Black said, "particularly when that matter of toilet dumping was carefully studied by the Department of Health Education and Welfare. There is a lack of evidence in the study identifying disease associated with the dumping practices."

Rex Lee to speak at Forum

Rex E. Lee, former U.S. solicitor general and founding dean of the law school at BYU, will be the Forum speaker at 11 a.m. today in the de-Jong Conert Hall, HFAC.

Lee will discuss the religion clauses of the First Amendment. He will also explore the meaning of the constitutional prohibition against "establishment of religion" and the "guarantee of free exercise" of religion and why they are so important.

Lee practices with the firm of Sidley and Austin, arguing almost exclusively before the U.S. Supreme Court in Washington, D.C. He also teaches constitutional law at BYU as the George Sutherland Professor of Law.

In 1963, Lee served as a law clerk to Supreme Court Justice Byron R. White. He became an associate in the law firm of Jennings, Strouss, Salmon and Trask in Phoenix, Ariz., in 1964 and joined the firm as a partner in 1967.

From 1975 to 1977 he served as assistant attorney general in the civil division of the Department of Justice. He was solicitor general from 1981 to 1985.

Regulators order $1.35 million payback

WASHINGTON — Federal regulators on Monday ordered payment of a record $1.35 billion to depositors in two insolvent savings institutions in California.

In rare move, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board closed American Diversified Savings Bank and North America Savings and Loan Association, both of Costa Mesa, without arranging for a takeover by another institution.

Only 10 of 235 failed S&Ls handled since 1981 have been resolved with a straight payoff of depositors.

Usually, the bank board pays a bonus to a healthy thrift to buy a sick S&L because it is cheaper. At the very least, the board arranges to transfer deposits to another institution.

But bank board Chairman M. Danny Wall said the unique characteristics of the two Costa Mesa thrifts made that impractical. They had little value as going concerns because they had few retail deposits and lacked branch offices, he said.

Both also relied on high-cost, short-term deposits arranged through brokers, which they in turn lent out for speculative real estate ventures and other risky investments.

Both institutions have been insolvent for some time. Regulators took over the management of American Diversified in February 1986 and of North America in January 1987.

Dukakis expects Democratic nomination

Michael Dukakis converted dozens of delegates to his cause on Monday and said he was looking forward to clinching the Democratic presidential nomination in Tuesday's final round of primaries. Jesse Jackson promised a firm but polite push on platform and rules issues at the party's convention.

Vice President George Bush, who wrapped up the Republican nomination weeks ago, said in California that he expects to find himself differing increasingly with administration policy as the campaign goes on.

"We'll probably be dragged into more and more of these things rather than less," he said at a news conference where he was asked about one such difference, his advocacy of a delay in an off-shore oil lease.

Bush said he would try to campaign "where I don't go out and do something to tear down or be negative about this president. It may not always be that easy."

The vice president has been urged by advisers to outline areas of disagreement with the president to try and reverse a decline in the polls.

Do not 'go west' say California voters

LOS ANGELES — For more than a century, California has been the promised land for those who heeded the age-old American advice to "go west." But now, the millions who have gone west are causing many others to go to the polls.

Across the state, and particularly in Southern California, voters are being asked to put the brakes on growth, at least until the roads, sewers and water supplies can catch up.

In last November's local election in California, 15 of 17 ballot measures aimed at limiting growth won approval.

On Tuesday, voters in Orange County, Pasadena, Hemet and San Marcos are being asked to adopt growth-related initiatives. In rapidly developing northern and western Los Angeles County, Supervisor Mike Antonovich is being challenged by candidates who say he has allowed developers to make lives miserable.

And more such challenges and slow-growth measures are in store for November. "What we have is an authentic grass-roots movement," said Bob Buster, who co-wrote a successful 1979 Riverside growth initiative.

Gregory seeks national war on obesity

NEW YORK — They have flown in from around America, each filling two airline seats, to lose weight and call attention to Dick Gregory's call for "a national war on obesity."

They are a dozen very fat people, from 268 to 600 pounds, to whom Gregory has offered a free last chance to lose weight — a service the comedian-turned-nutritionist says the government should be rendering.

"I never knew this kind of obesity exists," Gregory said Monday as he welcomed some arrivals at LaGuardia Airport. "I'm saying the government has to come in and get involved."

Since the case of Walter Hudson, one of several highly publicized obese people who have lost weight under Gregory's guidance, "A group of invisible fat people have become visible and they're all calling me," Gregory said.

The dozen will spend at least a year at a clinic Gregory is opening in upstate New York. They will be placed on a herbal diet and exercise routine devised by Gregory.

Big Water considers forming new county

BIG WATER — Big Water residents, led by their polygamist town leader, Mayor Alex Joseph, are considering launching a drive to form a new county out of the portion of Kane County where their town presently sits.

Townsfolk like the name "Dry Powder County" for the new entity, which Town Attorney Elizabeth Joseph, one of Alex Joseph's wives, said would allow Big Water to better promote development of land near Lake Powell.

Big Water would be the only incorporated town in the new county, although unincorporated areas of Church Wells, Paria and Clark Bench would be included, Mrs. Joseph said.

The total county population would be about 550 — about 150 fewer than Daggett County, the state's smallest.

community support." This year's telethon will benefit more than 160 non-profit hospitals for children. These hospitals accept children regardless of the family's ability to pay, telethon officials said.

More than 100 television, recording, movie and sports personalities appeared on the 21-hour show. All the celebrities donated their time and talent to the telethon, Findlayson said.

Marie Osmond, co-chairman and host said, "My parents have 29 grandchildren, and our family has always felt a great love for children. It's wonderful for me to know we are involved in something so dedicated toward helping the whole child — even if they can't afford it."

"I can never do enough when it comes to helping children," said John Schneider, co-chairman and host. "We are so thrilled with the amount of money raised each year, and we couldn't have done it without the celebrities who performed and helped out, and the people who opened their hearts and contributed."

The Children's Miracle Network Telethon was established in 1983 to raise money for and to educate the public about the important work performed by children's hospitals, telethon officials said.

Merlin Olsen, co-host, said, "The Children's Miracle Network Telethon is designed to benefit children, regardless of their diseases or problems. I can't think of a more worthwhile cause than striving to help all children."

The telecast was broadcast from Disneyland in Anaheim, Calif., Walt Disney World and EPCOT Center in Orlando, Fla., and Tokyo Disneyland. Satellites beamed the telethon to more than 194 television stations in six countries. In addition to the United States, it was seen in Canada, Mexico, Australia, Jamaica and Japan, telethon officials said.

Marilyn McCoo, co-host, said, "Being involved with the Children's Miracle Network Telethon is one of the most rewarding experiences I've had. I've watched exciting stories about children who seemingly had no hope, and I feel that in some small way, I've been a part of it."

Bob Hope, honorary chairman of the telethon's board of trustees, said, "The Children's Miracle Network has given millions of children a reason to smile again."

Recent BYU graduate dies

By KENT GUNNELL
Universe Staff Writer

The funeral of a 27-year-old BYU graduate will be at 11 a.m. today in Shelley, Idaho.

Roger Gordon Young died Friday evening at his home in the Old Mill apartment complex in Provo.

An autopsy is being performed by a toxicologist (drug-related analyst) to determine the cause of death and will take two to three weeks to complete, but no foul play is suspected, according to Cpt. Pierpont, Provo Police Department. "We had confirmed he had a sickness of serious flu and pneunomia and that coupled with other health problems over the years. This appears to be the cause of death at this point," said Pierpont.

Young graduated with a bachelor's degree in journalism from BYU in 1987. He worked for the Associated Press and the Deseret News, and was currently employed at Unicorp as a staff editor, according to Alan Simmons, Young's roommate at Old Mill.

"We remember him through his creativity and extraordinary wit," said Tony Young, Roger's brother.

Some of his pastimes were to listen to music and watch movies, said Simmons. "He loved life."

First Utah pediatric heart recipient dies from kidney failure

By APRIL D. LOWRY
Senior Reporter

Funeral Services were held Saturday for the first pediatric heart transplant recipient in Utah, 10-year-old Andrew Lowe.

Andrew passed away Tuesday after his liver malfunctioned due to complications following his transplant.

Noemi Lowe of Holladay, Andrew's mother, said three and a half weeks ago Andrew went in for a biopsy.

"He was very ill and the doctors realized it was the liver not the heart," she said. "It could have been related to the medication he was taking, but that is just an assumption. They did an autopsy but don't know."

Andrew's kidneys shut down and he also had pneumonia. His mother said he struggled really hard for three weeks and that she was grateful he was not suffering anymore.

"He had two good months at home and he was doing really well. He went to church and activities," his mother said.

According to his mother, he was able to do some of the things he said he wanted to do before he left the hospital after his transplant, such as cycling, swimming and horse riding.

She added that he got to go to church and activities and "led a somewhat normal life.

"We were blessed that that little guy came into our home, he had a very special spirit," she said.

Andrew's heart transplant was performed at the University of Utah Health Sciences Center on Feb. 15.

BYU has poor performance at NCAA track meet

Cougar's dismal showing can be blamed on sickness, a long wait and a disappearing athlete

ALAN K. BAILEY
iverse Sports Writer

What do a missing athlete, health blems and a long layoff between ets have in common? According to U Head Track Coach Clarence Roon they're all primary factors in Cougar's dismal showing at the AA Track and Field Champihips in Eugene, Ore. last weekl.

he men's team, which amassed y eight points in tying for 34th-place overall and its worst finish at the NCAA's since 1972, were without the services of senior shot-putter and national favorite Soren Tallhem, who disappeared two weeks before the NCAA's.

"He didn't say anything to anyone," said Robison Monday. "He just went home."

Robison said that the disappearance of Tallhem was an important factor in BYU's standing at the NCAA's in that he could have given the Cougars 10 more points and a higher finish. "He would have been a crucial factor," said Robison.

Tallhem, who had been plagued by injuries all of his career at BYU left the college shortly after winning the shot put and hammer throw at the WAC championship last month.

"He was a big, quiet kid," said Robison, who didn't understand why Tallhem disappeared. "It was hard to tell what was on his mind."

According to Robison, the long time period between the WAC championship and the NCAA's made it difficult for the athletes to stay at their peak.

"We had such a gap between the WAC championships and the NCAA's that it affected our performance," said Robison. "The schedule has been better for us before. They moved it back a week this year."

Women's head coach Craig Poole, whose team scored one point and tied for 42nd place, echoed Robison's remarks about the affect the time delay had on the athletes. He also said that one of the primary factors was the health problems of the Cougars, citing the last-place finish of sophomore All-American and meet favorite Hui Chen Lee in the javelin, who has been hampered by a viral infection. "She lacked the competitive edge," said Poole.

The bright spot for the women came from the eighth-place finish of Noeleen Mullan in the 1,500-meter run to give BYU its lone point. Mullen's showing gave her All-American status.

The only BYU athlete to gain points in the men's events was Ted Mecham, who finished second in the steeplechase Friday night.

UCLA, the meet favorite, won the men's competition for the second consecutive year by accumulating 82 points. Texas took second place honors with 41 points.

LSU barely beat out UCLA in the women's events by scoring 61 points, despite a strong showing by the Bruins' Gail Devers, who was instrumental in amassing 42 points.

Individual performances that highlighted the four-day event included a time of 10.03 seconds by Houston's Joe DeLoach in the 100-meter dash. His time, the fastest time in the world this year, broke the stadium record and tied the NCAA record.

Lynda Tolbert of Arizona State broke the NCAA record in the 100-meter hurdles with a time of 12.82 seconds, making her the fifth-best U.S. performer in history.

UCLA became the first collegiate team to break the three minute barrior in the 1,600-meter relay with a time of 2:59.91, breaking the old record of 3:00.55, which it set in last year's NCAA finals in Baton Rouge, La.

Magic fights 'pals' for championship

Associated Press

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — Magic Johnson came out on top in a battle against one of his best friends. He gets to face another pal in the NBA finals, and he's looking for the same result.

Johnson and the Los Angeles Lakers will meet Detroit for the NBA title starting Tuesday night. The Pistons are led by Isiah Thomas, who along with Dallas forward Mark Aguirre are among those closest to Johnson.

"He's not my friend when I walk on the court, he's my enemy," Johnson said of Thomas. "I'm going for the world championship and so is he. If he comes in (the lane) I'm going to have to put him on his rear."

Johnson had 24 points, 11 assists and nine rebounds Saturday to lead the Lakers past Aguirre and the Mavericks, 117-102, in the seventh game of the Western Conference finals.

"My eyes were set on a world championship," Aguirre said. "It didn't happen." Aguirre said he has chosen sides between Johnson and Thomas.

"My two best friends will compete for the championship," Aguirre said. "I'd like for Isiah to have one (the championship)."

Awe-skis take third at softball tourney

By DAN FAGETAN
Universe Sports Writer

BYU's intramural softball representative finished third in a field of five teams at this year's State Intramural Softball Championships that were held at Weber State on Friday.

The Awe-skis, last years 4-A Intramural Softball Champions, were selected by the Intramural Supervisors to represent BYU in this year's tournament.

The Awe-skis defeated Utah Valley Community College 9-8; lost to Utah State 11-10; and then lost to Utah Valley Community College when they played them for the second time in the losers bracket by a 5-2 score.

Utah Valley Community College, the winners of the tournament, came up through the losers bracket to beat Utah State twice for the championship.

"When we lost to Utah State, that was the first time that we had lost all season," said Awe-skis team captain, Matt Baker. "We were beating Utah State 9-3 when they came back to win it. Our hitting let up and our overall performance throughout the tournament was a real letdown."

"We feel like we have a better team this year than last," said Co-captain John Firth. "We have more power hitting and six of our players are returning from last year's team."

"The one thing that sets BYU apart from any other university's intramural program is the heavy emphasis that is placed on sportsmanship," said Softball Director Dave Green.

Teams are rated from game to game for sportsmanship on a scale from 1 to 5, with five being the highest.

Each team must accumulate at least 20 points in their five game schedule in order to be eligible for the playoffs at the end of the season.

"The Awe-skis were chosen to represent BYU because they showed a combination of skill and sportsmanship," said Green.

Other teams that received votes to go to the tournament were Sport Shoes, Ginch and Ghetto Magic.

Countdown test is a rehearsal for next shuttle flight

Associated Press

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — A countdown test will be conducted Tuesday in a major rehearsal for the first space shuttle launch since the Challenger disaster.

The launch team will assemble in the control center for the final three hours of a simulated countdown, with a mock liftoff of shuttle Discovery planned for 9:50 a.m. The exercise will be a realistic preparation for the actual launch, set for Aug. 31.

Following the countdown, mission control center in Houston will assume control of a make-believe flight.

Anonymous source says Thiokol won't bid

Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY — Morton Thiokol apparently has decided not to bid on a NASA contract to build a new generation of booster rockets for the space shuttle, a newspaper reported Monday.

The Deseret News quoted an anonymous source as saying Morton Thiokol plans to invest between $100 million and $200 million to modernize its Wasatch Operations plant in northern Utah in order to seek other space and defense business.

The Religion Clauses: Some Bi-Centennial Thoughts on an Important Corner of the Constitution

The religion clauses of the First Amendment are the product of two great early leaders, Jefferson and Madison. For over 150 years after they were added to the Constitution they lay dormant, but for the last one-half century they have been one of the most active and interesting areas of constitutional adjudication.

This Forum address will explore the meaning of the constitutional prohibition against "establishment of religion" and the "guarantee of free exercise" and why they are so important. Problems of the tension between the two will also be discussed.

Question and Answer Session at 12 Noon in the Varsity Theater.

BYU Chorale to hold concert

By SHARALYN S. HEATH
Universe Staff Writer

The Provo Tabernacle will ring with the sound of the 80-voice University Chorale today at 7:30 p.m.

Director Mack Wilberg, an assistant professor of music at BYU, said the concert will begin with three American anthems by American composers Gilbert Martin, Kenneth Jennings and Hank Beebe. The concert will conclude with "The Requiem" by John Rutter.

Soloists in "The Requiem" will be Stephanie Buckley, soprano; LaDawn Gardner, soprano; Ruth Christensen, alto; and Rob Dunn, tenor.

In "The Requiem" a small instrumental ensemble of harp, flute, oboe, cello and timpani will accompany the chorale, said Wilberg.

"The Requiem" is an English composition which was written in 1985. According to Wilberg, the seven sections of this work form an arch-like meditation on themes of life and death.

"This is not your typical requiem," said a member of the choir, Jeffrey Rice, a graduate student from Santa Cruz, Calif., working on a master's degree in audiology.

"Many requiems are very dark and somber, this one has some very cheerful parts."

The organist for the concert will be Parley Belnap, a BYU associate professor of music and an organ instructor.

Valinda Jensen, a member of the choir and a junior from Delta majoring in vocal pedagogy, said that many extremes of emotions are displayed by the music. "Dr. Wilberg really brings out these emotions in us and is able to capture the musical meaning," said Jensen.

"These are very accessible works, both for the performer and for the listener," said Wilberg.

Rice described the music as bright and fun. "They are not really heavy works," he said.

"The rhythms are upbeat," said Jensen. "The works are different from the ordinary. They are a refreshing change."

Student receives first-place honors at trumpet contest

By SHARALYN S. HEATH
Universe Staff Writer

A BYU trumpeter recently blew his way to Texas and won international recognition.

Bret Jackson, a senior from Los Alamos, New Mexico, majoring in trumpet performance, competed in the recent International Trumpet Guild Solo Competition and took first prize.

"I've looked forward to competing in this competition for quite some time," said Jackson.

Jackson said he left BYU's Chamber Symphony tour early to compete in the trumpet guild competition. The competition was held at North Texas State University in Denton, Texas, where trumpeters throughout the world attended the Guild's international convention.

The Trumpet Guild is a non-profit organization which brings together musicians with a common interest, Jackson said.

"When I found out I was a finalist I was really surprised," he said. "I really didn't think I had a chance at winning."

"By far Bret is the best trumpet player BYU has had since I have been here," said David Blackington, a BYU associate professor of trumpet performance.

Jackson said he competed against trumpeters throughout the world under the age of 25. Each musician played two pieces, one was taken from a list of required pieces and the other was a concerto. They all competed for a prize of $450.

"Winning this award is a real accomplishment," said Blackington.

While Jackson was at the convention, he also auditioned for a lead trumpet position with the Chicago Chamber Brass. He was the only one at the convention to be named a finalist for the position. According to Jackson, he will compete in Chicago on Wednesday against five or six other trumpeters for the job.

"Winning first prize and being named a finalist for the Chicago Chamber Brass has given me a lot more confidence," said Jackson.

"It also makes things a little more scary because people's expectations rise," he said.

Jackson said he wasn't sure he would take the chamber position if he was offered it. "There is a lot of high stress involved. Quartet music is hard because you're playing all the time."

Although he has received this recognition, Jackson said he has much more work ahead.

According to Blackington, Jackson has all the potential to become a professional trumpeter. "If he were to become a member of the Chicago Chamber Brass, he would gain the opportunity to perform professionally."

–and–
Outlook for the Future

Evening
8:00-9:30 p.m.
James D. Walker, Founding President, Afro-American Historical and Genealogical Society

On June 8, 1978, The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints announced that President Spencer W. Kimball had received a revelation extending the priesthood to blacks. The LDS Afro-American Symposium will commemorate that announcement by looking at the experiences of LDS Afro-Americans and the outlook for the future of blacks in the Church. Based largely on the information gathered by the LDS Afro-American Oral History Project sponsored by the Charles Redd Center for Western Studies, a department in the College of Family, Home and Social Sciences at BYU, the participants will examine the extensive integration and cultural communication Afro-Americans are experiencing in the Church. This symposium provides Americans and Latter-day Saints a timely, insightful educational inquiry of brotherhood within The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.
